NOTES AND QUERIES.

TASTES DIFFER.

Tastes differ: they always have and they always will. What is luscious to one palate is nauseous to another: objects that are beautiful to one pair of eyes are ugly to another pair: sounds which offend and distract some ears are pleasant and charming to others. This accounts for crowds of Chinamen assembling night after night, and remaining to a late hour, in the Chinese theatre: the acting and the music accord with their taste. The sound which we have just honored by the name of music resembles the squeal of a pig, the rattle of dry bones, the kick of a kerosene tin, and the strike of a suspended gun barrel, all mixed together in equal proportions, and repeated continuously. Foreign barbarians and uncultivated Hawaiians think it a horrible mixture of diabolical noise; but the refined Celestial drinks it in with dreamy delight. If the foreigners and natives living around [that neighborhood could acquire the taste of the Chinaman, they would be spared many sleepless nights and much annoyance. But failing to reach so high a standard, they talk of this music as a public nuisance that ought to be abolished by law.

BONES.

On the wharf a short time ago, I overheard the following conversation, which to me was more than interesting:

(First Party)—Yes, there appears to be quite a business in this bone meal. I have just heard that one of our butchers has sent for a mill to manufacture bones into meal here.

(Second Party)—Well, I am glad to hear that, we will have a chance to sell our meat bones. What will we get for them, do you think?

(F. P.)—Perhaps half a cent per pound.

(S. P.)—Oh! dear me, my meat bones cost me 15 to 18 cents per pound.

(F. P.)—How is that?

(S. P.)—My meat and bones cost me 15 to 20 cents per pound, just as the meat axe happens to strike.

(F. P.)—Yes, that is your meat, but the bones. You do not purchase at that rate.

(S. P.)—I see you do not know much about this part of housekeeping; the fact is, bones and meat are the same price, often more bones than meat, to a rib roast nowadays. You will see a lot of bones sticking to it like mast-hoops, all of which I pay for as meat. This was not the case years ago, but it is now.

(F. P.)—Cattle are high now. Years ago $15 was a good price for a bullock that would dress 500 lbs., now it's $50, and likely to be more. Other expense and also much higher such as wages rents so.

(S. P.)—Well, what will be the end of this—drop reciprocity, will that keep us?

(F. P.)—That would lower the price of beef, mutton, butter, &c., no doubt, but it would be rather severe medicine for the disease. I have no doubt but what this will work its own cure in time.

(S. P.)—Well, I have ordered beef from Washington Territory, some have ordered from Australia, others from Oregon and San Francisco, and before long I can say one half of our meat will be imported, as we import everything else—it will not only be cheaper but better for the health of our people. Too much fresh meat is not good in a climate like ours, it is eaten too soon after being killed, is tough and requires too much doctor's sauce to digest it.

(F. P.)—As far as that is concerned it will only be a couple of years when the Northern Railroad will be finished to British Columbia, a line of steamships is then to be put on to Australia via Honolulu, and with the freezing process on board we can have fresh meat from either end, and reciprocity with Canada will settle the sugar market with us.

(S. P.)—Is that likely to happen in our day?

(F. P.)—Before three years.

LOCAL AND GENERAL ITEMS.

The greatest bet ever made—the Alpha-bet. Ha! ha!

The horses sold yesterday brought low prices—the team bringing $490 and the other two $200 each.

A serious stabbing affray last night on Nuuanu st., between two negroes.

About 80 hogs are expected on the D. C. Murray, and also 4 finely-bred dogs for various parties here.

The Band will give an extra Concert at Emma Square, on Monday evening, 7:30, weather permitting.

Suppose you burnt your finger, what three authors would you name in your exclamation? The Dickens! Howitt Burns!

It is believed that St. Louis College will nett over $3,900 from the efforts of its fair assistants at the bazaar and luau.

Messrs. Dillingham & Co. have just opened four more cases of silver ware from the Meriden Britannia Co. Amongst the assortment we notice some very handsome designs.

The regular monthly meeting of the "Gleaners" will be held this Saturday afternoon Dec. 2, at 2:30, in the Ladies' Parlors of the Fort St. Church.

Two men broke into the safe and stole about $300 at the Ahuimanu Plantation, Koolau. They were convicted on Thursday and brought over here yesterday, and will be held for trial.

MYNAHS are getting very thick, in fact they are becoming a nuisance. We hear of them flying down by the thousand and eating up all the food spread for the fowls before it has been scattered ten minutes.

As will be seen by reference to our advertising columns, Mr. F. Gertz has just opened his Christmas stock of foot wear. His stock is so large that he has had to enlarge his shop to display it and store it to advantage. We have personally examined part of his stock, and can confidently warrant it as being new, fashionable, and of the best materials.

The lecture delivered by the Hon. A. F. Judd, at Kaunakapili, last evening, was largely attended.

We notice some very beautiful "Ribbons and laces for sweet pretty faces," in Mr. Mellis' window on Fort street. He is showing also some very fine fans.

At Fort St. Church, Sunday morning, will be reception of members to the Church, and the administration of infant baptism and the Lord's supper. In the evening Mr. Cruzan will deliver the first of a series of sermons on the fundamental truths of Christianity. Theme: "What is back of the Seen?—Bioplasm, Law, The Unknowable, or God?"

MESSRS. J. M. Oat, Jr., & Co. have just opened out their Christmas goods. Determined not to be behind other folks they have laid themselves out to cater to the public wants in this direction, and have got together one of the tastiest assortments in the Kingdom. A table down the centre of the room is loaded with Christmas cards—not marvels of costliness and extravagance, but of a refined and artistic taste. Books, paper weights, fancy stationery, photo albums, boxes in plush, autograph albums, purses and a variety of other elegant nick-nacks crowd the show cases, and an assortment of New Year calling cards gives us a hope that "Calling Day" will be kept up here. Behind all these are the genial countenances of Mr. Oat and his assistants, whose mute eloquence and gay geniality are worth more as an appeal than others' strident entreaties.

Every lady should see the New Patterns which Mrs. MELLIS has just received direct from Paris.
